Lydia: Back from Vegas! And I have some great news guys, I got married! But that's not all, I'm also pregnant! With triplets! Ahaha! JK, no babies, or weddings or overdoses or any other mess you guys seemed so sure I was going to get into. I can take care of myself, okay! I totally can.

I know I said I was going to show you all my scandalous adventures while I was in Vegas, but as it turns out I was just too busy living my life to film it for you all. But that's okay, because what happens in Vegas stays in Vegas, right? I mean that's the whole point, of Vegas, I mean it's like this alternate universe where there are no consequences and everyone is an entirely different human being, I mean you can do things you wouldn't normally do. It's okay because it's Vegas. Everyone knows that.

But now I'm home and it is the worst, I am having totes cray party withdrawals and I am so bored! I know you guys wanna see Mary and I totally talked to her the other day, but um, she's just really busy with school and boy stuff, and I don't want her to think I'm just hanging out with her because Lizzy and Jane are gone, so...

But everyone else is just awful, and my school friends have proven to be inexcusably lame in the face of party town. I mean they ditched me to go to a museum on New Years Eve. What museum is even open at midnight anyway?

Um, but uh, like I said, I... did run into some old friends in Vegas, and they're friends that Lizzy wouldn't necessarily approve of, but Lizzie doesn't know everything and if these friends were in town, it wouldn't be terrible of me to hang out with them, right? I mean, I can't let Lizzie get in the way of my life, she certainly doesn't let me get in the way of hers.

I should call him. Them. [clears throat] I mean them. No, I should call him. I mean, there's nothing wrong with hanging out, it's not like anyone else is around, not that I need anyone, I'm totally cool by myself, but I get bored, that's all.

Whatever, there's nothing wrong with having friends and hanging out with people. And that's all it is, so. Talk to you guys soonsies.
