Lydia: My first day in L.A. has been so much fun. Jane's actually not working today so we've been sightseeing around the city. It has been awesome. I think tonight we're actually-- oh, hi! Come here.

Jane: (enters frame) Guess who I was just on the phone with.

Lydia: Someone who wants to help you pay off back taxes and get out of debt?

Jane: No, it was Mom. She didn't know where you were. She wants you to come home. You can't just leave town like that without telling anybody.

Lydia: But I missed you! Please don't be mad at me too.

Jane: No, I'm not mad. And neither is Mom. She's just worried. She said you've been skipping classes again?

Lydia: Yeah, she seemed pretty worried when she told me how selfish and irresponsible I was being and how I should be more like you and Lizzie. Nothing new there.

Jane: No, she didn't mean that. We just don't understand what happened. You were doing so well, and with Mary helping you with school, and...

Lydia: I don't know.

Jane: She said that you might be skipping for a boy. Are you skipping classes to hang out with a boy?

Lydia: I would never do that. I can't stand that jerk.

Jane: Who?

Lydia: Brent Cooper

Jane: Brent... didn't you date him in ninth or eighth grade?

Lydia: Yes, and he just transferred into one of my classes and he's just been bugging me and I have not been skipping classes to hook up with him and I told Mom that but she won't listen.

Jane: But you are skipping classes because of him?

Lydia: Jane, you're making my vlog totally dramatic. The viewers don't want that.

Jane: I don't care what the viewers want. I care about my baby sister. Turn it o--
