Lydia: Well, after yet another long, intense study session, I think it is safe to say I am going to blow this test UP! In a good way, not in a fiery, things exploding, get expelled kind of way. I don't do that. Never. And I definitely had nothing to do with that prank in the science lab last year...

Anyway, as with all my other classes I have Mary to thank for being my study buddy. Say hi, Mary! Whatcha reading?

Mary: A book.

Lydia: You know we were just in the library for like five hours, you can have some fun now. Hey! Let's go get lunch, my treat! For helping me not totally fail my classes and everything.

Mary: I have plans.

Lydia: Ooh, with Eddie?

Mary: No, just plans.

Lydia: Okay, tomorrow?

Mary: Busy, sorry.

Lydia: Oh, um, okay. Is everything alright?

Mary: Fine.

Lydia: You just seem kinda...

Mary: Fine, Lydia. Everything's fine.

Lydia: Is it something with Eddie, because I mean you know you can talk to me-

Mary: Eddie and I are fine, thank you. In fact I was supposed to go to Mansfield Park with him today, but...

Lydia: Well, you know what they say. Boys come and go but family is forever. And ever and ever and ever and ever. You don't have to help me study, I mean I really appreciate it, but I don't want to make you hang out with me.

Mary: Yeah, well I need the money.

Lydia: What?

Mary: My ride's here. I'll see you later.
