Maria: Hey everybody! It's me, making another video, obviously.

Sorry you didn't get to see more of my interview with Charlotte. Apparently Ms. De Bourgh says now that "too much behind the scenes material is self-indulgent", which... I guess I get. It's so hard to keep up with internet trends. Ms. De Bourgh is such an asset to this company. I was so excited to get this internship. It's a great opportunity.

And Charlotte is so awesome for, for getting this for me. She's the bestest!

Even if she refuses to admit that the Harry Potter books are the most amazing thing ever! Sometimes she's just such a Muggle.

(knocking on door)

Charlotte: Hey there, am I interrupting?

Maria: Not really. Hey, what did you and Lizzie vlog about when there was nothing going on?

Charlotte: Umm... something was always going on. Whenever Lizzie complained she had nothing to talk about, those turned out to be our best videos.

Maria: You miss it, right?

Charlotte: I'm really busy now, I mean I don't have time to miss it.

Maria: Hmm, well it's got to be different. I mean, working on videos for your job. Is it still fun?

Charlotte: Uh, well, you know we treated The Lizzie Bennet Diaries as seriously as if it were a job. But yeah, it was nice having a project where we didn't have to answer to anyone but ourselves. Kind of like these are for you. Umm, I just wanted to ask, did you have lunch yet?

Maria: Yes, Mom!

Charlotte: Don't be like that, she'll kill me if you come home too skinny. Um, feel free to cut all of that.

Maria: Like you always did? Yeah, this is exactly like The Lizzie Bennet Diaries. For you, maybe!
