Maria: Hi again, Maria Lu here. I know I'm not supposed to be vlogging about Lizzie's videos, but this also happened in real life, so I think it's fair game. Charlotte got her invitation to Bing Lee's birthday party. I'm so excited.

Charlotte: What are you excited about?

Maria: Nothing.

Charlotte: I told you, neither one of us is going to the party.

Maria: Why not?

Charlotte: I have too much to do here, and you weren't invited.

Maria: I could be your plus one! And you could see Lizzie again. Okay, you're not still fighting?

Charlotte: We're not fighting, we're just... taking a break.

Charlotte: As you get older, sometimes friendships change. It's sad, but it happens.

Maria: Don't you miss her?

Charlotte: It doesn't matter. I-I don't magically have vacation time in a job I started two weeks ago.

Maria: Aren't you a partner?

Charlotte: And, as a good partner, I'm here for Mr. Collins and the company. There's a lot of work to do.

Maria: Oh! I did pitch him my idea about doing a behind-the-scenes material at Collins and Collins.

Charlotte: Maria.

Maria: And he said Ms. De Bourgh said we should do exactly that! And... guess who he thinks I should interview first?

Charlotte: Who?

(Maria points at Charlotte)

(Charlotte sighs)
